Tactics in M&A Arbitration

In today's globalised economy, increasing numbers of M&A transactions are international, both in terms of parties and subject matters, and to disputes arising out of such transactions. These disputes are typically referred to arbitration, the preferred dispute resolution method in international business due to its inherent flexibility. This creates scope for tactical manoeuvres which, skilfully handled, can contribute significantly to the successful outcome of a dispute for a party.

This book discusses and explains arbitration tactics in light of the arbitration laws of seven major European jurisdictions and Japan, and in light of the arbitration rules of some of the most eminent arbitration institutions. In particular, Tactics in M&A Arbitration:

- Describes the scope for tactical manoeuvring at each of the main stages of arbitration from beginning to end
- Discusses the tactical questions in M&A arbitration against the background in the key European jurisdictions of Germany, Belgium, England and Wales, France, Italy, Spain, Sweden, and Japan
- Explains the tactical leeway for the different components of the arbitration agreement.
- Explains key elements to be considered in the preparation of arbitration proceedings from the perspective of the buyer as well as the seller of a company
- Sets out tactical considerations to be observed with respect to the constitution of the arbitration tribunal
- Includes Arbitration rules of major international arbitration institutions and National arbitration laws for the eight jurisdictions
- Includes information on the IBA Rules on the Taking of Evidence.
