TUESDAY 5th October TO FRIDAY 8th October 2010

If you provide Probity Audit or Adviser services, or if you aspire to do so, this course is essential to your future work in this discipline.

You are invited to attend a new course for the Accreditation of Probity Service Providers - Procurement, designed specifically to develop and accredit Probity Auditors and Advisers to a standard acceptable to Government and industry in provision of probity services, particularly in areas of procurement of goods equipment property and services. This course also will apply to probity services to grants, sponsorships, funding regimes, competitive bidding arrangements, and consultative processes, particularly related to government.

This new course has been developed in consultation with industry, government, and academia, to provide a level of accreditation for the services of probity auditors and advisers.

Accreditation from this course is expected to be recognised by government as the skills level and standards required of its probity service providers at a National level.

This is a highly practical course program of learning and case studies, aimed at the expectations for delivery of probity services related to procurement and similar processes.

The course is supported by a Textbook and a course Handbook, all included in the course fees. Course presenters include highly experienced individuals in both probity and law, whose expertise is recognised by government and industry.

Further details of the course program are available from the Qld Chapter Administrator.

The Non-members course fee also includes associate membership of IAMA for the current calendar year to allow access to IAMA member benefits, particularly in post-course support.

IAMA intends also to conduct a second course on four consecutive Fridays, commencing 30th April 2010. Please note both courses are capped at 32 participants.
