John Bond SC is a barrister whose practice is devoted entirely to commercial litigation and advice. Amongst other areas, he has extensive experience in the resolution of building and construction law disputes in Court, by arbitration and through the use of alternative dispute resolution.

- Can an arbitrator attend an industry conference which is also being attended by one of the parties or their lawyers? Would it make a difference if the arbitrator and one of the parties' lawyers were scheduled to speak at the conference, perhaps even on the same podium?
- What problems are created if an arbitrator finds himself or herself at a social function also attended by one of the parties or their lawyers or a possible witness? How should the arbitrator deal with that issue?
- In this paper, Mr Bond SC examines the relevant legal principles and identifies sources for practical guidance as to the appropriate way to behave in order to preserve impartiality and to avoid possible challenge.
